

Structural Biology, Medicine and Healthcare

By Dick Lewontine

I. Structure

From simple structure in flora compared to a leaf pattern and its complex cellular, micro-level and macro-level complex which is the dissection of the leaf, flower and stem system which becomes in a micro-scope complexly patterned becoming then passed into a structural biology as – regional and dynamic alternation of a structural causality.

From this to human bodies which are infinitely more complex and structural factors of several regional complexities.

We move to healthcare which is now from ontology, to daily life phenomenology or free experience.

II. Health and Medicine, even Psychology and Psychoanalysis

Now human beings are fully secure to live but the pathogen or psychoanalytic state inducing a pathogen is then cured with a simple rule – for instance – the rule that lung problems are solved in a certain diagnosis.

Psychology though is a different discipline and seems to be with psychoanalysis the idea that – one is cured of the illness and then suffers the recovery – or even psychoanalysis cures tendentially and then takes one year to fulfill resumed life and activity.

Health plans are the structure I mean of phenomenological order – the cure is done for pathogenic states, but the cure has a long process in phenomenology.

III. 2024 Edit on Sirohi's Style of Self-Doctoring

Imagine a biologist as in fact structuring in Soviet biology something like the movement of body and lifestyle which ruptures the condition of the psychology with a fused sense of drinking coca cola or even following films and reading novels which fuses psychology again and add philosophy lectures and such a phenomenology with Buddhist styles of spiritual exercise all of which is a structural causality of phenomenology which then orders different levels of phenomenology and biology – the ur-structure and the daily structure as resonating with utopian curing process whose future is a process – I call this processual medical approaches – the processes self-checks and keeps improvising like jazz music.